

Greetings!

The National Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences (NEAFCS) Annual Session will be in Columbus, OH September 24-28, 2012. This is the first time that our annual meeting has been held in Ohio and the Ohio State University Extension Family and Consumer Sciences Educators are thrilled to host our colleagues in the Buckeye State! We are expecting between 600 and 700 participants at the conference and want to offer you a unique opportunity to share your artistic talents with people from all over the United States. The NEAFCS 2012 Marketplace is just the place for local artisans from Ohio to showcase their products for NEAFCS members to see.

Booth space is limited! Please send in your Registration Form and payment today! Registration dead line is August 1th, 2012. Booth space will be reserved only for those that have paid participants. Space will be assigned on a first come/first serv basis and post mark.

The NEAFCS 2012 Marketplace will be held outside the Exhibit Hall at the Hyatt Regency, 350 N. High St., Columbus, OH. We are looking for unique, non-duplicated merchandise. A table and two chairs will be available, if requested, and electricity is available if needed. You may use your own backdrops. Setup will be on September 27th from 6:30 to 8:00 a.m. The Marketplace will be open on September 27th from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Please consider being a part of this event with your unique items. Original items from local providers are preferred. We're sure they will make wonderful keepsakes and gifts for our members to take home!

For more information contact Kate Shumaker, Holmes County Extension Educator, Family and Consumer Sciences at 330-204-6340 (cell) or 330-674-3015 (work).

Hope to see you in Columbus!
